COMING TO THE DAVIS. The Fashion Shop, Vaudeville's Biggest Sensation, Here Next Week. One of the most unique features that ever visited itself upon vaudeville will be shown at the Davis theatre the first half of next week. This feature is The Fashion Shop, which, strangely enough, is just exactly what its name When, at the outbreak of the European war, Hugo Jansen, famous in Parisinn circles of fashion creation, found that every avenue of profit had been closed to him, he forsook his pro-fession, temporarily at least, and sought a new fleid of endeavor to which he could apply his talents as a designer of costumes. In his seeking he was assisted very materially by a very good friend, Henry Pathe, a vandeville artist who had appeared on the stage in this country, who pointed

Last Immortalized on the Screen. One of the greatest character studie ever contributed to the American stage, David Harum, enacted for sev-eral years by the distinguished star William H. Crane, has at last beer converted to the screen. William II. Crane makes his first appearance in motion pictures in this quaint portrayal in a five part production of the Fa-mous Players Film Co., on the Paramount program.

The human note that is struck in the early part of the production, and maintained consistently throughout the story, is the main strength of the sub-ject. In all the eulogistic reviews of ject. In all the entry state in newspapers throughout the country its hu-man qualities and fidelity to truth have always been emphasized as the dominant keynote of the drama. It is this lack of exaggeration in the types and events depicted that make the subject a verifiable page out of the book of life.

There are many David Harums all about us-men with a stern exterior and a kindly heart that beats in sympathy for all the rest of the worldwho do good quietly and secretly, and who sometimes bring about a pretty and tender romance, such as the on

As quaint as mignonette
And shy as modest pansy-buds,
With shower-jewels set;
She's happiness! And from this world;
I've nothing more to gain
When lassic comes to meet me
Adown the winding lane.

This earth would be a kindlier pince
If every man could know
The fragrance of a shady path
Where cool, green grasses grow.
Where, when the sunset hour came by,
And life was sweet and sane,
His singing lassie turned the stile
Adown the winding lane.
—Ethel Hallet Porter, in Lippincott's.
